

J.P. Concert Review

U2

The stellar sound of U2 over whelms Toronto fans. The U2 concert tour does a double night with their first Canadian show held on Thursday, May 24 followed by a second performance on Friday, May 25, 2001. Both shows were completely sold out. The band was awesome. There are not enough words to describe the electricity the band produced at the sold out A.C.C., fans really got their money's worth and more.

The band performed live to a packed house at the Air Canada Centre in Toronto, Canada. Every seat in the house was taken including standing room only way up in the rafters. As a matter of fact, scalpers were getting up to $2,000 for a pair of golds.

Bono and his band were sensational. The hard rock sound of U2 was absolutely electric. The band performed for more than 2 and one half hours and played over 28 of their greatest hits.

The energy level of the crowd brought the inside of the Air Canada Centre arena to a sweltering and steamy 100 degrees Fahrenheit temperature. It was hot. No band we have covered this year has yet brought that type of energy level to the A.C.C this year. Cold beer and ice water was the protocol for the evening.

Despite the heat inside the A.C.C. and the people were sweating profusely, fans still had it in them to dance, sing and scream all night long. The band was absolutely fabulous. The hard rock sound of U2 was sensational!

After the concert, the band still had enough energy to do a farewell interview live at the Much More Music Studio in beautiful downtown Toronto. The U2 interview was shown live on Much More Music at midnight that same evening. Hundreds of fans also waited for the band outside the eleventh hour nightclub located at 184 Pearl St. where the band was also scheduled to make an appearance. However, unfortunately due to last minute scheduling changes the band did not show.

Special thanks go out to the band U2, Universal Records Public Relations people and the Air Canada Centre security personnel. Transportation for J.P. Public Relations Inc. provided by a Celebrity Limousine Services and Hattz Sports and Entertainment Limited. Edited by Mary Ferrante, Written by J.P. from J.P. Public Relations Inc. Article sponsored and published by J.P. Concert Productions and CelebrityExtra.com.